Section 1412. Acquisition Workforce Training Fund

- There is established within the General Services Administration an acquisition workforce training fund to be managed by the Federal Acquisition Institute. The fund would be financed by depositing quarterly to the fund five percent of the fees collected by various executive agencies under certain government-wide contracts. The fund may only be used for acquisition workforce training for civilian agencies; the provision does not apply to DoD and DoD would be exempt from making contributions to the workforce training fund. This authority is sunset five years after enactment.

Section 1423. Statutory and Regulatory Review

- Within 90 days after enactment, the OFPP Administrator shall establish an advisory panel of at least nine recognized experts in acquisition law and government contracting to review laws and regulations regarding the use of commercial practices, performance-based contracting, the performance of acquisition functions across agency lines of responsibility and the use of government-wide contracts. The panel shall review all federal acquisition laws and regulations and, to the extent practicable, government-wide acquisition policies, to ensure effective and appropriate use of commercial practices and performance-based contracting and other matters. The authority of this section shall expire ten years after enactment. In addition, the OFPP Administrator shall establish a “center of excellence in contracting for services” to assist the acquisition community by identifying, and serving as a clearinghouse for, best practices in contracting for services in the public and private sectors.

Section 1432. Authorization of Additional Commercial Contract Types

- The Federal Acquisition Regulations shall include authority for time and materials contracts or labor-hours contracts to be used for the acquisition of commercial services commonly sold to the general public through such contracts. These additional contract types may only be used for commercial services in support of a commercial item or for any other category designated by the OFPP Administrator on the basis that (1) the commercial service is commonly sold to the general public through such contract types; and (2) it would be in the best interest of the government to authorize the use of such contract types for purchases of the commercial services in such category. For each procurement, the contracting officer must (1) execute a determination and finding that no other contract type is suitable; (2) include in the contract a ceiling price that the contractor exceeds at its own risk; and (3) authorizes subsequent change in the ceiling price only upon a determination that it is in the best interest of the government to change such ceiling price.

- An executive agency engaged in a basic, applied or advanced research and development project that has the potential to facilitate defense against or recovery from terrorism or nuclear, biological, chemical or radiological attack may exercise the same authority as the Secretary of Defense may exercise under 10 U.S.C. 2371 (except (b) and (f) of such section). An executive agency may carry out prototype projects in accordance with the authority of Section 845 of the FY 1994 DoD Authorization Act to facilitate defense against or recovery from terrorism or other attack, including the requirement that, to the maximum extent practicable, competitive procedures be used. - The OFPP Act is amended to provide government-wide authority to use special emergency procurement authority to support a contingency operation or to facilitate the defense against or recovery from nuclear, biological, chemical or radiological attack against the U.S. For such procurements, (1) the micro-purchase threshold shall be $15,000; (2) the simplified acquisition threshold shall be $250,000 for a contract awarded and performed, or purchases made, inside the U.S. or $500,000 for a contract to be awarded and performed, or purchases to be made, outside the U.S.; and (3) the threshold for the simplified acquisition procedures for the acquisition of a commercial item procurement shall be $10 million. In addition, for a procurement to which this section applies, an agency may treat a procurement for property or service as a commercial item; however, if the contract is greater than $15 million and awarded on a sole source basis as a commercial item, the contract shall not be exempt from the cost accounting standards or the requirement for cost or pricing data.
